DONOR PRIVACY POLICY

Thomasville Center for the Arts (TCA) is committed to respecting the privacy of our donors. You may choose to remain an anonymous donor at any time.

TCA subscribes and adheres to the Donor Bill of Rights created by the Association of Fundraising Professionals (AFP).

What information we collect

Personal information is information that identifies you individually, such as your name, mailing address, telephone number, and email address. We collect and securely store any personally identifiable information you provide us.

How we use that information

We will not sell, rent, trade, or share your personal information. We use donor information for these purposes only:

- Processing donations.
- Distributing receipts.
- Acknowledging gifts.
- Communicating with donors about TCA activities.
- Conducting fundraising.
- Record keeping.
- Reporting to applicable government agencies as required by law.
- Surveys, research, metrics, and other analytical purposes.
- Other activities related to fundraising operations.

Financial information

All access to donor financial information is strictly limited to those TCA staff who need to process the data for official TCA business. No donor financial information is given to any person, organization, or group who does not need to access those data.

TCA uses only those online payment processing services provided by merchants who have validated compliance with the Payment Card Industry (PCI) Data Security Standard and the Payment Application Data Security Standard. TCA does not store, nor does it have access to, credit card information, bank account numbers, or other account data sent to those processing services.
